DAVIS FILES LAWSUIT

TOPEKA (September 30, 2015) - Former Democratic Gubernatorial Candidate Paul Davis has filed a lawsuit on behalf of two Douglas County residents against Kansas Secretary of State Kris Kobach claiming the a rule requiring citizens to complete their voter registration requirements within 90 days violates the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and the National Voter Registration Act. Unfortunately for Davis, the lawsuit filed against Secretary Kobach does not represent the reality of the law. The process of discarding incomplete voter registrations after 90 days does not violate the National Voter Registration Act. In order to be added to the voting rolls to begin with one must complete the registration process; if the citizen has started but not completed their registration within 90 days they will have to begin the process over again which involves filling out a half page form and providing proof of citizenship.
